Bill Nye: Friction

1. Fire fighters use friction to control how fast they fall.
2. It's friction that makes this wooden box stick to the table so it's hard to push.
3. The force between the ramp and weight get smaller and smaller, and then the weight slides down hill.
4. Friction is what keeps your bicycle from sliding out from under you as you go around the corner.
5. It's your finger prints that let you hold onto smooth things, or pick up small slippery things.
6. A hovercraft is a big boat that pushes air underneath it so that it floats on the water.
7. Basketball shoes are made of rubber, and rubber has a lot of friction when it's going against the hardwood.
8. Skates slide because they make a layer of liquid water between the metal blade and the ice.
9. A world without friction would be dangerous.
10. Since a bowling ball is round when you push it, it starts to roll, it's not sliding, and that lowers the friction.
11. Fish are smooth and slippery so they can slide through the water, cutting the friction.
12. Slugs make mucous so it can move.
13. Song: "Friction happens, it makes some heat."

It takes the right conditions and a lot of time.When rocks break down into smaller and smaller pieces, they become soil. We live on top of rocks – the Earth’s surface. The pieces of rock mixed together with decaying plants and animals give new plants a place to grow and give earthworms, insects, and the tiny decomposer organisms a place to live. Books of Science! “Rocks and Minerals” by Steve Parker. Sedimentary rocks are made from small pieces of other rocks stuck together. There are three basic types of rocks – igneous, sedimentary, and metamorphic – and each type is made a different way. The Big IdeasDifferent rocks are formed in different ways. Soils are made up of small rocks mixed with plant and animal materials. One type of rock can change into another type of rock as the Earth’s surface shifts and changes.
